

2nd October 2007

In 2007, the Government of Alberta entered into a contract with OEM Consultants to provide web-based Lean 101 training to 50 companies in Alberta. This was a pilot project to test the efficacy of web-based learning tools that could potentially improve productivity.

The training was completed within 3 months and we received favourable feedback from the companies that took the course. OEM was also very proactive in reporting weekly progress on the project and has developed a database to get objective reports for each client.

In my interaction with OEM, I found OEM to be professional and very responsive and would not hesitate to use them again in the future.
